

Open source framework:

One popular open-source framework you can use to build an employee travel approval application for corporates is Django. Django is a high-level Python web framework that encourages rapid development and clean, pragmatic design. It provides built-in tools for authentication, admin panels, and database management, making it an excellent choice for creating robust web applications. You can utilize Django's features to create a secure and efficient travel approval system tailored to your corporate needs.